9. QUESTION: (INCLUDE SCENARIO IF NEEDED FOR CLARITY):

The claimant began receiving CalFresh in March 2010. The County notified claimant of overissuance for period June 2010 through August 2010 for failure to completely report all earned income which exceeds maximum gross income limit. The claimant sells cars. He disputes the calculation and argues through his attorney that the only income he can reasonably anticipate is minimum wage since, if needed, his employer supplements any of his commissions to equal minimum wage each month. He reported net income and attached checks to the April 2010 QR 7 dated May 2, 2010. The check stubs indicated a net amount. The county asked for gross income verification twice and when it was not received it sought wage information from the employer. The employer showed gross income for April of approx $5000 (income was earned in March). The county determined the claimant was over gross income limit and thus the overissuance. The claimant testified he told his worker he received commissions. The claimant receives an advance each month that is later deducted from the following months paycheck. The advance is the only income he reported on the QR 7. (cont)

10. REQUESTOR'S PROPOSED ANSWER:

11. STATE POLICY RESPONSE (CFPB USE ONLY):

The recipient did not meet the requirements to report his gross income on the QR 7. The county is correct in assessing an OI for the June 2010 through August 2010 quarter since the gross income was verified from the employer.

However, because of the recipients occupation, the county should have looked at past history of income to determine his income for purposes of calculating CalFresh benefits. Per MPP 63-503.242(a)(1), "...the CWD shall take into account the income already received by the household during the month of application and any anticipated income the household and the CWD are reasonably certain will be received...". In addition, MPP 63-503.242(a)(3) states, "If income fluctuates to the extent that a 30-day period alone cannot provide an accurate indication of anticipated income, the CWD and the household may use a longer period of past time if it will provide a more accurate indication of anticipated fluctuations, in future income."

4. REGULATION CITE(S):

He did not list the gross or the net amount of the check dated April 10, 2010. The claimant did not indicate anything on the QR 7 that would indicate he expected his income to fluctuate. Since the county is supposed to only count reasonably certain income how, if at all, is it is determined what amount of commission income is reasonably certain?

The claimant was receiving transitional CalFresh through February 2010. On March 5, 2010 he applied for CalFresh. The case narrative notes bi-weekly income of $600. The county used $1200 as income for the period March 2010 through May 2010 and the claimant was assigned to Cycle 3. The county knew the claimant was working on commission at the time of the March 5, 2010 application.
